In ninetynine cases out of a hundred, these claims are unfounded and frauduinvestigation of a properly constituted judicial tribunal, and therefore they rush before Congress and seek, under the cover of greater and more important measures, to worm their accounts through Congress and defraud the Government of immense sums of money. It will be impossible for such infamous robberies to be successfully and the people of the country will dence, to see if a powerful and working minority cannot be, at least, a safe-guard upon the public treasury. This bill of Congressman House's is a brave, bold step in the right direction and we trust every Democrat in Congress will rally to his support.

ONE of the saddest features of the ment is, that it deprives the blatant demagogue and would-be repudiator of his most persuasive argument and grand battle cry, "submission to the people." If the people are not content with the action of any Legislature, they know a subsequent one may repeal its predecessor's act. This meaningless cry was the demagogical plea upon which the hungry office-seekers of the State wished to crawl into power; but now, alas, such a cry availeth nothing, and the poor, miserable discontents will have to look about for some other petard by which they may endeavor to hoist themselves into office.

In speaking of Guiteau's appeal to the 'court in banc' many are ignorant of what the terms means. It simply means a full court of the five district judges sitting, just as our own Supreme court, for the determination of questions of law exclusively, as distinguished from a court sitting to determine questions of fact. Banc is the old common law word for 'bench.' Judges Carter, Wylie, Humphreys, Mac-Arthur and Havnes constitute the court in banc to hear the appellate law questions in Guiteau's case.

STATE SENATOR, J. H. Wilkinson, of Cadiz, Trigg county, Ky., Died at Frankfort on last Tuesday, where he was in attendance upon his duties as State Senator from the 3d District. In his death, the State of Kentucky loses an efficient public servant, the bar a lawyer of abil. ity and weekly journalism a good writer. He was known to the newspaper fraternity as the editor and proprietor of the Cadiz Democrat. He was a native of Virginia, but had lived in Trigg county for many years. He held the honorable position of County Judge for that county for sixteen years, and was greatly esteemed by all who knew him.
